SAMPLE QUESTIONS FOR MECAT

INTRODUCTION

The Media & Entertainment Creative Aptitude Test (MECAT) is a comprehensive assessment tool designed to gauge the creative aptitude and potential of individuals aspiring to enter the media and entertainment industry. This report provides an overview of the MECAT assessment structure and its three key components: Behavioral Fitment, Aptitude Fitment, and Industry Knowledge.

BEHAVIORAL FITMENT

MECAT employs advanced psychometric assessments to analyze candidates' behavioral patterns and suitability for careers in the media and entertainment sector. This component consists of two assessments:

FACE Assessment

This assessment delves into the core behavioral patterns of candidates, utilizing Carl Gustav Jung's psychological types. It aids in understanding candidates' personality traits and how they align with roles within the industry.

MIO (Multiple Intelligence Orientation)

Based on Howard Gardner's theory of multiple intelligences, MIO assesses candidates' various intelligence orientations. This provides insights into their cognitive strengths and how these align with different aspects of the media and entertainment field.
